

MARIA MONICA F. PRADO

MARIA MONICA F. PRADO is the Lead Communication Consultant and Founder of Communicare Training and Development.

With her background in the fields of communication, media and corporate training, Monica established Communicare to help organizations and individuals enhance their communication skills. She has developed and conducted training programs on workplace communication, English grammar, written and oral communication, presentation skills and image enhancement for thousands of individuals and many of the Philippines' top corporations.

Aside from being a sought-after resource speaker in the corporate arena, Monica is often invited to speak at events and conventions and to guest on television and radio programs. She is also a faculty member of Miriam College's Communication Department.

Monica obtained her Master of Arts in Integrated Marketing Communication, with Honors, from Miriam College. She holds a Bachelor's Degree in Communication from the same school. She has taken up Training and Development Management at the De La Salle–College of St. Benilde School of Professional and Continuing Education.

Today, Monica continues to inspire and train people on how they can use their communication skills to achieve their goals. Her customized and applicable trainings directly address her clients' needs; while her interactive and motivational facilitation style allows them to have a fun-filled learning experience.
